Excerpt: . picture here drawn is a caricature, and can make no pretence to be a true picture. Well, for South Lancashire substitute destitute people of over seventy years of age; substitute for the Distress Relief Bill the Old Age Pensions Bill, and for The West Riding substitute destitute old people between sixty-five and seventy, and you have an exact and literal account of what took place in the opening of the proceedings in Committee in the summer of 1908, when the Old Age Pensions Bill was being piloted through the House --to use the professional phrase consecrated to that futile performance. The supreme question, the one thing that most mattered to the destitute, was dealt with precisely as a despotic monarchy would deal with it, but without the moral right and position which lies behind a despotic monarchy; the procedure of the House had been used simply to cheat the people, and very effectively was that bit of cheating done. the Tone Oe The House There pervades the House of Commons a certain moral atmosphere conventionally called the Tone of the House. All corporate bodies, a school, a regiment, a household, present this phenomenon, and the House of Commons is no exception to the rule. The Tone of the House would of course be somewhat modified by a renewal of its personnel; it would be greatly modified by even a slight modification of its rules; it would not be the same were a different...
